PROSPECTUS of the BALMAIN GAS-LIGHT COMPANY (LIMITED). CAPITAL-£15,000, in 15,000 SHARES of $1 meh.

CAPITAL—£15,000, in 15,000 SHARMS of $1 anch.

PROVISIONAL DIRECTORS:

Booth, John, Esq. W. Cameron, Esq., chairmen.

Booth, John, Esq. Broomfeld, Gardin, Req.

Reuntree, Captain Thomas Taylor, John, St.

ECRESTARY (pro sen.);

F. R. Robinson, Esq.

The projectors of the Balmain Gas-Right Company believe the time has arrived when the establishment of such a company will advance the prosperity, comfert, and convenience of the inhabitants of this borough; that the best results will follow by such a company being a local core, supported by the inhabitants as consumers; and, while advancing their suburb as a place of residence, will form a safe and paying investment for their capital.

Great improvements have been introduced in gas—making, and the cost of plant and labour will be less mow than it would have been at any time during the last venuty years.

The Provisional Directors have consulted the best authorities upon the cetablishment of gas-works, and believe the capital they have named will be sufficient to arect a works capable of supplying the growing wants of the borough for some years to come, and feel assured they will be enabled to provide gas at such moderate prices as to induce extensive use in churches, public buildings, shops, private dwellings, &c.

It is computed from reliable sources that the value of colonial gra-making material is as follows terellings, &c.

It is computed from reliable sources that the value of londing as-making material is as follows:

It he average Newcastle coal will yield gas equal in quality to the British parliamentary standard, vis.:—thriven candies.

The illuminating power of gas from the Hartley mineral is equal to fifty candide.

The admixture of a small per centage of Hartley mineral with Newcastle coal will secure gas of a very superior quality.

That this gas property purified will be the cheapest.

mineral with Newcastle oeal will source gas of a very superior quality.

4. That this gas properly purified will be the chaspest, cleanest, coolest, and healthiest light the Belmain eitieness can use.

At present Sydney prices it will be more than—12 thines chesper than wax 6 times chesper than sporm of a manual secretary of the secretary of the secretary of the secretary of a company which san place at the disposal of our subtrain of a company which san place at the disposal of our subtrain residents a light so much chesper and preferable to any they have hithreto used.

By the British Parliamentary returns in 1865, it is shown that the profits of the thritem Metropolitan Gas Companies averaged 11-32 per cent. on their capital; and this result, where the price of gas is less than helf, and the cost of coal nearly double what it is in this colony; and Balmain stands second to none, from its local advantages to profit in these respects.

The Share have been fixed at a price which places them soal nearly double what it is in this colony; and Balmain stands second to none, from its local advantages to profit in these respectia.

The Shares have been fixed at a price which places them within the reach of every consumer. Property holders and residents generally are invited to support this proposed company in order to assure themselves a supply of a superior article at a permanently moderate price; thus, while exploying the advantages thereof, they may also participate in the profits.

At the serilest practicable opportunity application will be made to Parliament to incorporate the Company, and limit the liability of shareholders.

Applications for ahares to the Previsional Directors, in the sancard form, accompanied by a deposit of 2s 6d per share will be received, addressed to the Secretary, at the School of Arts, Balmain, or at 485, George-street, Sydney.

School of Arts, Balmain, or at 436, George-strees, Sydney.

The balance per share will be called up as required, at intervals of not less than two months, and not exceeding 2s 6d per share at any one time. The Provisional Directors will call the shareholders tegether to form the company, and appoint directors, &n., when 10,080 shares are subscribed for; and in the event of that number of shares not being applied for by the 31st of August next, the deposits will forthwith be returned in full. Or if the Provisional Committee deem it advantable, they may convene a mosting of the subscribers within ten days thereafter, to consider the desirability of etarting the Company with less appital.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

Having recently suffered from a slight attack of "meningrits," consequent on an exhausted state of the nervous system owing to a late affliction, and brought on by intense mental excitement, I take this method of dissipating the minds of those whose patronage I am dependent on, that that attack was one of lunsey, although committed to the Darling burst Reception House for treatment.

"Repeated applications have been made to thom to join the Board of Management by payment of the usual entrance for, and contribution to the current expenses of the Brigade, but without success. Further than this, two of these off we have had very valuable services reduced by your Brigade on several occasions of fire, and for which claims have been seat to them, but no payment can be obtained. The aid reduced in many cases has saved them from (what otherwise would have been) considerable, if not, total less, "Awaiting your refty,"

Central Engine Station, 97, Bathuraf-street, Sydney, 16th August, 1871. To the Board of Management, Insarance Companies Fire Brigade.

Gentlemen,—To obtiale misapprehension or misconstruction, permit me, in reply to the comments of Massrs, Edward Chapman and Co., and Mr. J. C. Neith, jun, (upon the "notice" which I published by your order), is state that those gentlemen did, as mentioned by them, offer on behalf of the Companies which thay represent, is contribute ratally with other offices to the CURARNY WORKING ENVENSES of this Brigade, but retused to pay the customary (or as Mr. Meild says ANY) antrane for—in other words, they proposed to participale graditionally in the use and benefits of a plant and appliances whoo lave cost the Associated Offices some £3000 (as a matter of fact the entrance fees annuant to just one-twentisth part of the cost of the steam fire-engine), purchased by you only a few months ago.

To me it appears that a proposition to occupy a house free of rent charge upon an understanding to contribute towards the landlord's expenses of keeping it in repair, would not be more unreasonable or absurd.

I have also to admit that Messrs. E. Chapman and Co. have twice (the only occasions on which claims were rendered to them) paid the demands so made, which consisted chiefly of the item of wAORs incurred for protection of property insured by the New Zealand Office, but this brigade has not been favoured with any recognition of signal service rendered, for which no formal claim was made, on the occasion of the fire at Mr. Poy's premies.

Mr. Nelld, in a supplementary letter which appears today, asserts that his company "has never had the assistance of the brigade," forgetting or ignoring an incident which happened not so very long since in Market-street-involving, it is true, a trilling sum to his company, but considerable treable and lose of time to myself as Superintendent of the Brigade.

If have the honour to be, Gentlemen,

ANCE of Mr. BOWN'S BRIGADE.

ANCE of Mr. BOWN'S BRIGADE.

The service which Mr. Bown states he rendared us, consisted in LOOKING AT the place where a small fire had occurred. Several other persons LOOKED also.

What Mr. Bown did, he did at the instance of the POLICE, and why he took "two men" with him when the fire was OUT BEFORE HE HEARD OF IT, I cannot imagine. Neither can I understand how he "conceived he was protecting us from claim," seeing no damage was done, or loss sustained.

At last, at the end of the year 1808, she accompanied the King to St. Petersbourg, and returned to Berlin, now evacuated by the French troops. They returned to Huten in the summer of 1809. From this is dated Gueen Leaise's three letters to her father.

"My well beloved Eather,—All is lost, at least for the present. I am tranquil and resigned to the will of God. Every day it appears more clear to me that all that has happened has been wisely ordained. Providence, by a new order of things will overturn the least hip to in the learner of frings will overturn the least hip to it he learner of frings will overturn the least hip to it has been wisely ordained. Providence, by a new order of things will overturn the least hip to it has been this more least to the exigences of the time demanded, and we have been left behind. No one has seen this more plainly than the king. Just now I have had a long conversation with him on this very matter, and he said to me sorrowfully—All ought to be changed. The Empirer of France is wise and politic. We can learn much of Napoleon. It would be blasphemy to say that tradits with him, but to all appearances he is an instrainment in the haults of the Almighty. Certainly better times will come. Good only produces good. This is why I cannot believe that Napoleon is firmly scated on his splendid throne. Truth and justice alone are immutable. Napoleon's reign is sullied by injustice. He has not acted generously towards hummairly. His ambition is insatiable for no other end than personal excellation. His character inspires us with more astonishment than admiration. God is just, and in this I find my crasolation and screnity. All in this world is transvert. Our greatest care should be that each day should find us better and better. (From "The Next Generation," by John Francis Maguire, M.P.)

Sin, I oppose the motion of the hon, gentleman, the member for Snowdon, and I intend to express my opitions pretty plainly; for I can tell you, Mr. Speaker, the world has been too long humbugged and hamboogled with this matter of classics, and classical education, and nonsense of the kind. (Laughter.) I expected some of you would laugh at me, because I touch you on a tender point. But I don't care about a laugh—it don't break bones. (Hear, hear.) Mr. Speaker, I am a plain man. (A voice: "Very," much laughter, and "Hear, hear.") At any rate, whatever may be the opinions on that score—and I remark, sir, it is well for some of my neighbours that tastes differ—(laughter)—I am determined to speak my mind on this subject of classical lectures for the million. (Hear, hear!) Sir, I sm a plain man. ("Hear, hear!) Sir, I sm a plain man. ("Hear, hear!") and laughter.) And I sak, what good have these classics done this country, or what good have these classics done this country, or MYTHOLOGY MODERNISED.

Ond Watches.—On the Waltham table at the Woman Suffrage Bayaar there is a case of curious old watches to be seen, some of them the oldest in the country. They show the progressive steps in watch-making since 1600 up to the present time. Among them is one made by Linnebae, at Orleans, about the year 1600, before screws or hair-springs were peed. It is a small silver watch, with but one hand to indicate the time. It has the "barrel" and "fusce," and the power is communicated from one to the other by means of a horsehair or something of that kind. There is also a very ancient "bull's eys," that seems to have seen hard service; its face is scarred and its hands gone. This one was made by Alexandre fifty or sixty years later than the other. This to some extent is held together by screws, and has the hair-spring and a chain instead of the horsehair. Though old and full of years, it yet retains some vitality. Both of these watches have the verge escapement, which required them to be twice as thick as those now made. These belong to the American Waltham Watch Company. Another is very curious in construction and interesting from associations. This belonged to the Duke of Wellington. It is large enough to file awtch-pocket three times the present size. The carving on the gold case represents a battle-field, wint tents, cannon, and implements of war; on one side is an elephant, indicating the battle to have been in the East. Rising above the scene is the Rock of Gibraitar, upon which is planted the British lion and flag; in the distance the rising is seen between the Pillare of Hercules. The case and the carving are of different colouredgold. On the white cannelled face are indicators of the day of the week, of the mount, the changs of the imon, with second, minute, and hour hands. It strikes the hours and quarters reguladly, and will do this at any time by touching a smong, thus giving to the air the time within a quarter of an hour.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 19, 1871.

THE Agricultural Exhibition, although it last The Agricultural Exhibition, although it lasts only for a short filme, will doubtless draw a considerable attendance. It is difficult to say what is the most valuable interest to any particular country, for the agency of commerce makes the production of one supplement the deficiencies of another, and by this means the contributions of the whole world may meet on one table. We have sometimes indeed found amusement in tracing the assiolas in a sinde amusement in tracing the articles in a single room to the countries of their origin, and examining, in the light which they afford, the ancient cry—do not be dependent upon foreigners. There is hardly a country of any remarks or the second of the s that the variety of callings in a community is selected by its actual wants and fasilities is o advantage, and checks that tendency to over outlet is so often a source of great inconvenience and distress.

The cultivation of land, when it can be profitably used, is the most healthy and happy employment. We are not sure indeed that the farmer is the most satisfied with his lot. He is larner is the most satisfied with his lot. He is liable to innumerable casualties. These arise from the fluctuations of the seasons, and the invasion of his crops by those enemies which in such variety live upon his produce from seed time to harvest, and even in his barns continue their depredations. Still the average result of careful cultivation, if not selliunce in company also larter. The farm affluence, is commonly plenty. The farm produces what the house consumes, unless in those districts where the habits of the in those districts where the habits of the small homestead are in defiance of every rule of husbandry. The tendency, however, of the present age is to extend scientific farming, and to apply mechanical resources to the cultivation of the earth, to produce largely from the same surface, and to do so with diminished animal force. The advancement diminished animal force. The advancement of agricultural machinery is encouraged by the high cost of labour, which can only be made available when it is skilful, and can apply those instruments which mechanical ingenuity and chemical knowledge have produced. Those who cannot obtain these means of culture, or who have not intelligence to apply them, will be necessarily at a disadvantage, and will be apt to ask for protection. When this system existed in England the people often suffered grievously from the price of bread, and the farmers also suffered from the failure of crops. When the production of corn was left to the one only seventy-three days from pilot to pilot; the passage has been portagened under most favourable sircunstance, tair winds been portagened under most favourable sircunstance, tair winds been portaged throughout. The condition of agriculture paying in this country is that it should be skilfully conducted; and that the knowledge of the nature of ground thould be ascertained; that it shall be accessible. market; and that the implements used shall sconomisc labour. If these conditions are not present, agriculture will not pay. The peasant larmer may manage to live. He will be subjected farmer may manage to live. He will be subjected to many temptations. He will be apt to sink down into comparative misery when the seasons are unfavourable, which they are sometimes sure to be. It will be far better for persons in such circumstances to seek other employment, where they would have the advantage of association, which they can never possess in their miserable cabins, where they are in danger of that depression in the social scale which always results from the combination of isolation and poverty. It is clear. scale which always results from the combina-tion of isolation and poverty. It is clear, however, that the extension of knowledge by which cultivation may be facilitated, will increase the number of those who devote the macies to the agricultural calling, and therefore every exhibition which points out the possible improvement of stock, which promotes the dispersion of superior seed, which displays the working of improved imple-ments of husbandry, and which by increasing the demand for them, inevitably reduces their cost, is a benefit to the agriculturist, and likely cost, is a benefit to the agriculturist, and likely to make farming more successful.

The range of production indeed in this country is very great. It is impossible to see the different forms of successful culture without being impressed with the immensefulfility of the soil, and capacity of the climate. Floral exhibitions show the large range within which the specimens. which the specimens of every country can be adopted and improved. Animal life finds soil and temperature adapted to all its varieties Nothing is impossible to industry, guided by knowledge. The different zones favourable in life keep up a continuous supply, so as to pro-long the abundance from one year to another Thus, by the help of steam on the ocean and on the rail, the seasons are practically prolonged, and the produce of Fasmania, of Goulburn, and of Brisbane, is made available Goulburn, and of Brisbaue, is made available in Sjdney; while our vegetables and fruits, unless prevented by fiscal absurdities, may be useful to our neighbours. Some of the finest vegetables we have ever serf were sold in the shops of Sydney, being cut some forty-eight hours before on the banks of the Yarra. This intercourse can be only beneficial. It multiplies the means of subsistence and the cheapness of living, as well as extends the friendly relation of the colonies. It affords the means of core by stepplying it from another.

The total absence of these means in former ages made the fluctuations of the seasons the source of frightful calamities. We never ghance over a large collection of anciest chronicles without seeing the misery which resulted from this cause alone, expressed desaited from this cause alone, expressed often in a short paragraph, as stating probably that so many thousands of persons died from famine, followed often by a statement that so many other thousands died from the black plague which followed it. Indeed these two calantities are constantly in succession, and those whose wealth enabled them to escape from the general famine, found it no defence against the "black death."

Happily, in the light of modern civilization, these disasters are avoided. We are not so unwilling to be dependent upon foreigners as was the good old English farmer many years ago: and although we are liable to get deranged in our accounts, and often travel up King-street hill for their arrangement, we are in less danger than were perhaps a more honest generation of famine and pestilence. The interest in the advance of agriculture is therefore not local, but general—not of one country, but all. It is an interest which depends on plenty, not searcity—on a wide range of markets, and on the facilities of general transport. It is an interest which contributes much to the expension of our railways, which in their turntension of our railways, which in their turn tend to the prosperity of our cities. It is by the natural development of the various forms of industry and cultivation, and the assistance they render to each other, and not by the hothouse encouragement of any, that we may hope for general prosperity. for general prosperity.

Ir was stated a few days ago in a telegram from South Australia that Colonel Fire, pino, as agent for an English colonization company, had offered to locate 6000 people in the Northern territory in consideration of a gran of 250,000 acres of land. Colonel Firedness recently passed through Sydney on his way to Queenaland, and informed us that the figures in this statement were not correct, though it was true that he had made an offer which was under the consideration of the Government. That offer was to the effect that the presented would plant 800 people for every 100 square miles of first-class agricultural land, and a miles of first-class agricultural land, and a small number of people for every equal quantity of pastoral land. The latter part of the offer is certainly not very tempting. Pastoral land wants stocking with sheep, cattle, and horses, and there is no room and no need in the first instance for any population beyond the requisite station hands, nor is it easy to see how any English company can advantageously take pastoral work out of the hands of the colonists. Local knowledge and local enterprise are quite equal to any work of the kind. There are thousands of people here born and bred to the occupation, theroughly familiar with all its details, and better acquainted with the economics of taking up new country than any English enthusiasts can possibly be. The South Australian Government might, perhaps, advantageously offer free grants of land, or large leaseholds, at a nominal rate to enthusiasts can possibly be. The South Australian Government might, perhaps, advantageously offer free grants of land, or large leaseholds, at a nominal rate to enterprising speculators who will take stock to the Northern territory, either by see or through Northern Queensland, or by the central telegraph route; for the first squatter who stocks a bona fide run in Armheim's land is the real founder of the colony, because the first productive occupier of the soil.

But though there is not much scope for pastoral colonization by an English company, there is plenty of scope for assistance in promoting agricultural sestiement. Everybody admits that the colony is under-peopled—that there are fertile lands which ought to be tilled, and yet immigration is opposed because we have already people out of employment—but an organised immigration would suit everybody, except perhaps a few squatters whose runs might be resumed or diminished to make room for cultivators. People who should come out in groups with no intention of competing in the labour ; market, but to go at once on land prepared for their reception, and to commence the task of raising expertable produce, would not tread on anybody's toes or diminish anybody's profits. They would be a clear gain to every class in the community, would add to our wealth, and create a fresh demand for labour. There have been in the colonies a few isolated and incomplete attempts at systematic colonization of this kind, but nothing compared to what there might advantageously have been. The principle of individualism has been everywhere in the ascendant, and organized co-operation has not had much to do with the work of colonization. There is still room for it, however, especially in the younger colonies, and we are not surprised to hear that, from New Zealand and Queensland, Colonel FIELDING has received overtures that make it would add to our wealth, and create a fresh FIELDING has received overtures that make it probable that in those two colonies the company he represents will find some scope for its pany he represents will find some scope for its experiments.

It may be asked why an English association should interfere in the matter at all, or what advantages it would have over one established in the colonies. To this it may be answered that an English agency is in the right place for selecting suitable emigrants, and also that it is in a better position for raising money at a cheap rate, and therefore better able to lend it at a cheap rate. It is true that our and policy has rather proceeded on the assumption not only that the small occupier of new land sloces not want to borrow, but that he ought, by every possible means, to be of new land does not want the small occupier of new land does not want to borrow, but that he ought, by every possible means, to be prevented from borrowing. There is a sort of presumption that if he begins to borrow he is a rulned man, and that it is a kindness to him, and a benefit to the community, to make it impossible for him to mortgage. The incomplete character of the title granted for the first three years effects this purpose, and in perpetuity afterwards the State offers to act as credifor on easier terms than would be furnished by the current rate of interest in the money market. Yet with all these presumions we have not really prevented the class of free selectors from getting into a condition of indebtedlass. We have merely restricted the number of persons from whom they can get advances, and allowed them to offer only inferior security. Too many of them only inferior security. Too many of them have been obliged to get into debt in order to live, and have come under obligations to storekeepers, produce agents, millers, &c., and for these obligations they have of course had to give trief are age. course had to give the pro que. The fact is that land without capital is as often a source of disappointment as of profit. It is quite true that labour is the originator of capital, but it does not follow from that that labour can dispense with capital. Bach new conditional purchaser does not really begin at the beginning of the social scale. Although he the beginning of the social scale. Although he goes upon new land, he takes his station in an old society, and commentees competition with producers already established and operating on the basis of capital. In that condition he cannot advantageously dispense with the assistance of capital. He may possibly struggle through without, but the process will be slower and more laborious than if he were assisted. If we take two settlers and put them down side by side, the one with nothing to rely upon but his strong arms and his hearty enthusians, and the other with capital to clear, feace. and the other with capital to clear, fence-plough, soy and stock his land, and pro-visions enough to carry him on to the first harvest, there can been o question as to which will, cateris paribus, first make a competency. The weight of the dobt to be paid off by the useisted farmer is light compared with the value of the initial help. Every one will admit that a man with capital is more likely to succeed on a new farm than a man in all admit that a man with capital is more likely to succeed on a new farm than a man in all other respects equal but without capital; and every one will also admit that it will pay a practical farmer better to put his capital into his land then to put it out to interest, and struggle on without it. For if he is fit for his business, he can do more with his money in his hunness than by danting it elsewhere and he business than by planting it elsewhere; and by parity of reasoning, the non-moneyed farmer can make more out of money that he puts upon his land than any moderate interest he might have

The chief inquiry for mining has been for the now fashionable Thames stocks, Tookey, and Caledonia, the former being done up to 31. Specimens from the rich lead of the latter axhibited on 'Change to-day, are of a totally different character to the auriterous quarts of this colony, the gold being very fine, and forming different character to the auriferous quarts of this colony, the gold being very fine, and forming a regular vein through the stone. Peak Downs Copper declined steadily from 48s. down to 45s.; latest business ranging between the lower rate and a shilling higher. Gaslight are unaltered; 18th has been the buying figure. Debentures being very source, the recent improvement in City of Sydney has been main-tained. Nothing further has transpired as to the intentions of the Colonial Treasurer regarding the undisposed balance of the £374,000 loan.

A full meeting of the Pastoral Association has been called for the 28th, for the discussion of important business connected with the most twiusble of Australian interests. Most members of the committee, though engaged in mercantile pursuits in this city, devote a good deal of attention and time to matters appertaining to the squatters, many of whom are thoroughly apathetic upon questions in which they have a vital interest. This the committee seek to remedy, and as a large number of gentlemen from the country we expected to visit Sydney during the Kahibition, they wish to place the association on a firmer basis, thereby giving greater weight to any action taken by the office-bearers for the general good of all concerned.

THE OVERLAND TELEGRAPH.

By Wednerday's mail (August 9), says the South Australian Register of the 10th, Mr. Todd received full news from the construction parises of the interior sections of the Overland Telegraph, and in each instance the information is very satisfactory. Sections A and B were rapidly approaching completion; section C. which was excoored to be the mist difficult of all, has turned out remarkably easy, and would be completed by the end of November; section D was properated in time without any assistance; and on section E special as had been communed on the 25th of May, so that there would be seven clear months in which to do the work.

receing favourably, and it was autispased would be incided in time without any assistance; and on acction E operation as had been commenced on the 25th of May, as that there would be seven clear mouths in which to do the work.

From Mr. Knuckey, who has charge of section A, letters to the 17th July have been received. Recepthing was going on in a most estifactory maner; 92 miles of poles had been planted Tour chains apart, and there were 100 poles cut and stacked on the Pink, and 65 poles in another position. The item poles had not arrived. A good many of the sheep had been lost, but he had recovered some of them. The Charlette waters had decreased but very little, although there had been no rain, and there was very little, although there had been no rain, and there was very little, although there had been no rain, and there was very little, although there had been no rain, and there was very little, although there had been no rain, and there was very little, although there had been no rain, and there was very little, although there had been no rain, and there was very little, although there had been no rain, and there was very little, although there had been no rain, and there was very little, although there had been no rain, and there was very little out to their promators.

Mr. M'Minn, of section B, writes under date 3rd July; the following effect;—"Since usy leaf have visited Mr. Mills has got a very much better specified in the section of the section of the was a nicelpated. From Mr. Bonnewell, who has just returned from the North we hearn that Mr. Basor's contract for the beautrapion of the seathern end of the line was proceeding satisfacturity. About 200 miles has been wired, and in a fort drut's time there would be 600 miles of poles on the ground, re kener 10 poles to the mile. The country was very dry, and rate was needed. There was very lible doubt but hat the contract would be completed within the given time. AUSTRALIAN JOCKEY CLUB.

Mysrc.—I believe that there is a love for music in every child born, and that if it disappears in after-life it is for the want of cultivation. Was there ever yet a baby who could not be sung to sleep? However this may, to play some one instrument is of m revealue to a man than at first sight appears. To the character it is a refiner. Music is the medicine of the soul: it soothes the wrinkles of a hard life of business, and it lifts us fron the thoughts of money, intrigue, enterprises, anxieties, hatred, and what not, to a caimer, more heavenly frame of mind. To a man, himself, therefore, the power to play is of use. He may not always have a satter, wife, or daughter the sing or play to him; he may not always be within reach of the opera or concert room: and then, too, half the enjoyment of music is gone when you cannot enjoy it as you list, and of what kind you need, gay or grave, as your fancy lies. It is an indugence to a pure mind, and one of these few indulgencies which are free from harm.—Gardiner.

M ESSRS, FARMER AND C are now landing their importations of NEW SPRING FASHIONS from the ship Queen of Nations.

The new goods will be brought forward throughout the various departments on and after THIS DAY, and during the Exhibition week, a special display of novelties will be made daily.

The advantage of selecting from the largest as well as the most recently imported slock, will be apparent to every visitor to our Establishment.

We import only the best goods of their respective classes, and these are sold at prices which render them really cheaper to the consumer than as-called bargains usually advertised.

We direct special attention to our new premises, next the Royal Hotel, No. 442, GEORGE-STREET, which connect with, and form part of our other four Establishments. ments, Nos. 269, 271, 273, and 275, Pitt-atreet.

ANNUAL SALE of the MOUNT DERRIMUT SHORT-HORN BULLS of the unrivalled BATES on BUTTERFLY BLOOD. DALMAHOY CAMPBELL and CO. have DALMAHOY CAMPBELL and CO. have been favoured with instructions from the well-known breeder Mr. Richard Morton, of Mount Derrinaut, to sell by public suction (through their auctioneer), as Kirh's Bassar, Bourke-street, on TUREDAY, the 24th October next, at noon.

5 prime young bulls, 13 months old, of great promise, four of them being got by his imported bull "Duke of Brunswick" (20037), out of Butterfly cows, from Imported stook on both sides.

The agents have much pleasure in calling the attention of breeders to this sale, and have full confidence that these bulls, as a lot, will be found superior to anything ever offered for sale out of Ragland; as a proof of which, and to show that the Batse on Butterfly blood is highly appreciated it may be stated that four of the "Duke's" calves, from 4 to 11 months old, have already passed into the hands of some of the very best judges of stock here, at the high average of £237 los. each. The sale will, as usual, be without the alightest reserve, except upon one animal, viz., "Duke of Derrimut," for which his breeder reserves the right to make one bid.

Catalogues of pedigrees and fall particulars can be obtained on application, to the Agents, 63, Queen-street; or to Mr. MORTON, at Mount Derrimut, Maidstone.

JOHN GEORGE DOUGHARTY has been favoured with instructions from Robert M Phil-lamy, Req., of Gorman's Hill, Esthurst, to offer for abso-lute sale, at 2 o'clock, on FRIDAY, the 25thday of August next, at Mennies' Hotel, McIbourne (unless previously dis-roged of privately) osed of privately),
The following runs, viz.:—
WAMERAWA, WARRIGAL, BUNBUNDALOO, WERIBIDDE, and WARRAN DOWNS,

containing together
About 130 square miles,

About 130 equare miles, and 1100 cattle, of mixed sexes, and
3000 abeep (more or leas).

The country consists of plains, sandhills, and open box forest, abounding with saitbeath and mysall, and is not surpassed by any in Australia in its fattening capacity. It is close to the wall-known Mole stations of Messes. Cobb and Co. and Mr. Dargin's stations, the stock from which are so far-country known in the Melbourne markets.

The stations are abundantly and permanently watered by the Macquarie River and the Martingary and Wamerawe Creeks.

Of the stock, 200 of the cattle are prime fist, and ready to start at once for market. The ewes are now lambing, and there will be nearly a full clip of wood on the sheep at the time of delivery of the station. The rental of the runs is very low by comparison.

The above stations offer unequalled opportunities to any person with a moderate capital who would work them emegetically; and as shearing time is approaching, the owner and anctioneer would prefer ceiling privately, so as to give a buyer every chance of success in taking immediate advantage of the present spiendis season, and making the most economical preparations for shearing.

Terms liberal.

The Improvements consist of some miles of substantial fencing, a very neat

Twelve Cottages of sawn timber (weatherboards), erected for labourers, smithy, storehouse, engineer's department, &c., &c., give quite the appearance of a township to this part of the plantation.

Tarnbandini is, without doubt, one of the finest properties on the Macleay River. About 500 screes are RICH ALLUVIAL LAND, naturally cleared, and the remaining 300 scree scellent forcet land, and would be found to be particularly well adapted for a SUGAR PLANTATION.

The estate is all enclosed with funcing, and is divided into horse and cattle paddocks, dairy, milking yard, piggeries, &c., together with a constortable family residence.

geries, &c., together with a constortable family residence.

In bringing this truly valuable estate before the public, it is only necessary to state that the soil is very rich and eminently adapted for growing sugar-cane; that little or no expense would be incurred in a plantation, the limit being to a large extent naturally cleared; that if has large water frontage: that it is clear to a terminip; and that the improvements already upon it are such as at once to render it a PRODUCTIVE and REMUNERATIVE INVESTMENT.

ST Perhaps at no time has there been a more favourable opportunity for investing in this new interest. The information acquired as to the means for escuring a circuit result from the cane, and the advantage of a market being at hand for all that can be produced, coupled with the fact that no better land for the purpose could be desired than that now offered, gives this sale an importance which should not be overlooked.
